ADVERTISEMENT.

THE following works, as well as those comprized in the two former Catalogues, have been collected during a series of years, chiefly for the purpose of illustrating, by a reference to original and authentic sources, the rise and progress of the arts in modern times, as well in Germany and Flanders as in Italy. They are therefore not wholly to be judged of by their positive merits, but by a reference to the age in which they were produced. Their value chiefly depends on their authenticity, and the light they throw on the history of the arts; yet as they extend beyond the splendid æra of 1500, there will be found several productions of a higher class, which may be ranked amongst the chef d'œuvres of modern skill.

With regard to the originality of the Drawings which compose the first part of the following Catalogue, it may be proper to observe, that as such productions were for the most part intended only for the use of the artist in his more finished compositions, and not, like etchings or engravings, for publication, he has seldom authenticated them by either his name or mark. This deficiency has therefore been supplied in general, either by the friends and contemporaries of the artist, or by the persons into whose hands they have in subsequent times happened to fall, and who have endeavoured to assign each piece to its proper master; at the same time frequently adding some note or mark, distinguishing the drawing as having formed a part of some particular collection. The authenticity of such drawings may therefore be considered as sanctioned by the different persons to whom they have successively belonged, and whose autographs or marks they bear; amongst whom may be enumerated the celebrated Painters GIORGIO VASARI and BENEDETTO LUTI; together with the DUKE OF MODENA, PADRE RESTA, and many others in Italy; M. CROZAT, M. MARIETTE, and others in France; many collectors in Holland and the Low Countries; and KING CHARLES I. the EARL OF ARUNDEL, SIR PETER LELY, MARTIN FOLKES, ESQ. SIR JOSHUA REYNOLDS, MR. BARNARD, and several others in this kingdom, and particularly that very worthy man and excellent connoisseur, JONATHAN RICHARDSON, who formed the finest collection of drawings ever brought together in this country. Thus these works have been received as authentic, and have passed from one cabinet to another, from the rise of the art to the present day; and in this state a great part of the following collection is now brought before the public.

Hopes had been indulged by the present possessor that the works of Literature and Art included in this, and the two preceding Catalogues, might have formed the basis of a more extensive collection, and have been rendered subservient to some object of public utility; but the circumstances of the times are not favourable to his views, and they are now therefore offered to the public, in detail, and without reserve. The Catalogues may serve, however, to give an idea of the entire collection, when the works that compose it are again dispersed.

First Day.

art, many of which have since perished, and of which these Drawings are now the only representations. They are all from the collection of Monsignor Marchetti, Bishop of Arezzo, which was formed by Padre Resta, and after the death of the Bishop was sold, by the mediation of Mr. Talman, to Lord Somers, and composed the chief part of the volume of Drawings, No. 6, in that collection, particularly mentioned in Mr. Talman's letter, in the catalogue of the Pictures of Geo. Villiers, Duke of Buckingham, published by Hor. Walpole Lord Orford, 1753, page 76.

DRAWINGS OF ITALIAN MASTERS.

FLORENTINE SCHOOL.

The references to LANZI, STORIA PITTORICA DELLA ITALIA, are to the edition of BASSANO, 1809, in six vol. octavo.

GIUNTA PISANO. Lanzi, l. 8.

fi. 1210—1236.

22. 8 One, Figure of a Young Man, full robed; his right hand supporting a book. On a green washed ground, heightened.

Size 7½ in. high, 4½ wide.

E. d. r. i. l. e

EXTREMELY CURIOUS.

With this artist, who was prior to Cimabue, Lanzi commences his series of the Florentine School.

At the back of this Drawing is the following note (in the hand writing of Jonathan Richardson the elder) from Padre Resta. :—

“ GIUNTA PISANO, nome incognito al Vasari; Pittore antecedente a Cimabue.

Furono trovati questi Disegni (there were about six of them) di maniera Greco-gotica, de' tempi bassi, del principio del secolo *duodecimo, in un repostiglio d'una casa che fù di Pietro Perugino, First Day.

pervenuta, circa l'anno 1683, nelli Padri dell'orto di S. Filippo di Perugia, assieme d'altri disegni, tra' quali uno di Pietro della Francesca."*

This Drawing, which formerly belonged to Padre Resta, has since been in the collections of Jonathan Richardson, Arthur Pond, and Mr. Barnard.

CIMABUE.

Lanzi, I. 14.

b. 1240, d. 1300.

OR HIS SCHOOL.

3 7-9 One, an Angel in the Clouds, turned towards the left, Engraving bearing a cup in his right hand; on a grey ground, heightened. VERY FINE.

Size 14 h. 8 w.

This piece has been ascribed by Padre Resta to *Giovanni
Pedrino*, who is said to have been a scholar of Lionardi da Vinci; but of whom nothing further is known. v. Lanzi
IV. 202.

It bears however decisive evidence of a much earlier state of the art, and corresponds precisely with the fac-simile of a drawing of a similar subject engraved by Metz, under the title of School of Cimabue, a copy of which accompanies this drawing.

From the collection of Padre Resta, afterwards of Jon. Richardson; of both of whom there are remarks on the back.

GIOTTO DI BONDONE. Lanzi, I. 16.

b. 1276, d. 1336.

/ 4-10 One, the Coronation of the Virgin. A design for the celebrated Picture in the Chapel of the Baroncelli, at Florence, under which Giotto inscribed in letters of gold, OPVS MAGISTRI GIOTTI. Bistre.

Size, 18 h. 13 w.

First Day.

This very early and curious Drawing belonged to Vasari, who has decorated it with a rich Architectural border. It was afterwards in the collection of Richardson.

A Print in imitation of it has been very accurately engraved by Metz, a copy of which accompanies the drawing.

- 11 One, the Coronation of the Virgin; a different design for the same subject. In the former the Son, sitting in front, crowns the Virgin kneeling before him; in this the Father is seated on the throne, and the Son crowns the Virgin whilst the Father embraces them.

This Drawing has probably been deprived of a part at the bottom. Its present size is $6\frac{1}{2}$ h. by $7\frac{1}{2}$ wide.

In other respects it differs considerably from the preceding; particularly in the Architectural part, which is intirely Gothic, and induces a belief that the other drawing has been modernized in this respect by Vasari.

From the Collection of Padre Resta, who has cited it in his Parnaso de' Pittori, p. 9, No. 3, with the following remark:

"Il disegno per quei tempi è insigne, ed è la Coronazione della Beata Vergine, che dipinse in Santa Croce di Fiorenza, nella Capella Baroncelli, ove cominciò la fama à renderle celebre."

It was afterwards in the collection of Jon. Richardson, in whose hand writing are many remarks.

On the Reverse is a Drawing of a Man on Horseback at full-speed, thus noticed by P. Resta:—

"Un Uomo a Cavallo, in corso, rovescio dell' antecedente." Parnasso de' Pit. p. 10.

- 12 One, a Group of Five Female Figures, proceeding towards a large Urn on the right. Pen Drawing.

Size, $5\frac{1}{2}$ square.

This graceful design is from the collection of Mr. Ottley, Catal. 623.

SIMONE MEMMI, Lanzi, I. 32. First Day.
Called SIMONE DA SIENNA.

b. 1286, d. 1344.

13 Six small Circles of Sacred Subjects, beautifully designed and highly finished.

Simone Memmi was the friend of Petrarca, and painted the Portraits of him and of Laura; in return for which, the poet has immortalized him in two of his sonnets.

These Pieces are from Mr. Ottley's collection, where they were attributed to Fra Giovanni da Fiesole; but the style precisely agrees with the pictures of Simone Memmi in this collection.

MASOLINO DA PANICALE. Lanzi, I. 57.

b. 1378, d. 1415.

14 One, a Young Man sitting, turned towards the left and blowing a pipe. On brown paper heightened.

Size, 7 h. 4 w.

VERY CURIOUS; from Mr. Ottley's Collection. Catal. 801.

MASACCIO DI S. GIOVANNI. Lanzi, I. 58.

b. 1401, d. 1443.

15 Two, a whole length Figure of a Man standing, in profile, heightened.

Size, 8 h. 3½ w.

From the Duke of Argyle's and Sir Joshua Reynolds's Collections.

A Man standing with a paper in his hand. Black chalk on blue paper.

Size, 8½ h. 3 w.

16 One, Figure of a Young Man sitting, on a grey ground; a Head on the reverse.

Size, 7½ h. 5 w.

From Mr. Ottley's Collection.

First Day. 17 Four, of single Figures; undoubtedly of the Master, but much defaced.

From the same Collection, where one of them was attributed to Paolo Uccello.

The Drawings of Masaccio are extremely rare and highly esteemed; it is well known that Michelagnolo admired and studied his works.

Masaccio

LORENZO Ghiberti. Lanzi, I. 181.

b. 1378, d. 1415.

18 One, two Saints joining hands, a Pen Drawing on Parchment.

Size, 7½ h. 5 w. VERY FINE AND CURIOUS.

Find

From Mr. Ottley's Coll. Catal. 602.

This artist executed the Sculptures on the Gates of the Baptistery of St. John at Florence, which Michelagnolo deemed worthy to be the gates of Paradise.

7 h. 9 w.

From Mr. Ottley's Collection.

2. 3. 79 A Design from the Collection of Mr. Ottley, described in his Catalogue as "A Sketch by Michelagnolo for his own Monument. At the bottom the Rivers Arno and Tiber with the Representation of the Laurentian Library and the Church of St. Peter's, his chief works in Architecture. The Compartment in the centre represents Michelagnolo when a boy received by the Arts into the Garden of Lorenzo de' Medici, where he began by designing from the remains of Ancient Sculpture; on either side, the guardian genius of Buonarotti triumphing over Envy and over Death. Above his sarcophagus appears the Figure of Fame sounding his praises with three trumpets, as a sculptor, a painter, and an architect. FINE PEN, MOST INTERESTING." v. Mr. Ottley's Catal. No. 1678.

8 h. 6 w.

Notwithstanding the authority of so distinguished a judge in works of art, it is presumed that this Drawing is not by Michelagnolo, but is the design for the principal front of the Catafalco, erected in the Church of St. Lorenzo at Florence, on the occasion of his funeral, which was attended by the Grand Duke of Tuscany, and of which a very particular account is given by Vasari, in his Life of Michelagnolo; from which it appears, that all the principal artists of Florence united in honouring his memory, by erecting this immense, though temporary, structure; and in particular, that the figure of the Tiber was executed in imitation of a Statue of Marble by Giovanni Castello, and that of the Arno by Battista di Benedetto; that the representation of Lorenzo de' Medici, introducing Michelagnolo when young into the Gardens of the Medici, was painted in Chiaro Scuro by Mirabello and Girolamo del Crocifissajo; and that the figure of fame at the top was executed larger than life, by Zanobi Lastricati, the sculptor, who had the direction of the whole, and who, it is not improbable, was the designer of the present sketch. First Day.

It further appears from Vasari, that the Catafalco was only suffered to remain a few weeks after the funeral, for the inspection of the public ; so that this drawing is now probably the only remaining representation of a work intended to confer the highest honours on Michelagnolo, and which employed the talents of the first artists of the time.

80 The Interior of the Great Hall in the Palazzo Farnese at Rome, with three Groups of Figures in the Niches, resembling the style of Michelagnolo ; and thus noticed in the Descrittione della Citta di Roma (1779) vol. ii. p. 204 :

“ Nella gran Sala (del Pallazzo Farnese) vi sono &c. ed un gruppo grande di Alessandro Farnese coronato dalla Vittoria, con la Fiandria dinanzi a lui inginocchiata ed il fiume Escaut (Scheldt) incatenato sotto i suoi piedi.”

9 h. 15½ w.

The works of Michelagnolo either in Painting or Sculpture are not numerous; the former he disliked, and the latter is necessarily slow in its productions. It is therefore in his Drawings only that he is correctly known beyond the Alps. They bear the decisive character of his genius, and may be distinguished by their being evidently intended for sculpture rather than for painting. Every thing is formed in large and simple masses ; and hence the features, the limbs, and even the draperies of his figures are sublime.

Mariette observes that the Drawings of Michelagnolo are met with both as sketches and finished compositions. In the former he gave way to his bold and original genius, and appears in some degree a creator. In the latter he finished his work as highly as possible, preparatory to his executing it in fresco. Specimens of both of these occur in the present Collection.

8 h. 10 w.

The whole of this Cupola has been engraved by Vanni.—v.
Catal. of prints, No. 193.

- 15 One, St. Catharine ascending into heaven, surrounded by a choir of angels. Red chalk; very fine. Geben

14 h. 10 w.

From the Collections of Mr. Richardson, Mr. Hudson, and Mr. Barnard. At the back there appears, in Richardson's hand-writing, "In the Dome at Parma;" and at a subsequent time he has added, "Andrea Sacchi copied the whole Cupola. This is probably of him."

This is perhaps a mistake, the subject of this Drawing being very different from that in the Cupola of the Duomo, which is the Assumption of the Virgin. Richardson has however made a much greater mistake in the account he has given of the subject of the following Drawing, which he unaccountably describes as the Coronation of the Virgin. v. Richardson's Traité de la Peinture, p. 660.

- 316 One, the Ascension of Christ in the midst of his disciples: the design for the Cupola in the church of St. John of the Benedictines at Parma, in which Christ appears in the centre, "con violento scorcio," ascending in glory. The Apostles seated on clouds form a great circle below. They are all foreshortened in va- Brooke

b. 1555, d. 1619.

356 One, the design of a summons or ticket for admittance at the pronouncing a discourse by the scholars of the University of Bologna (from which a print was engraved by Oliviero Gatti); beautiful pen. 1 Gatti

6 h. 7½ w.

From Richardson's Collection, who has given a very full account of this Drawing at the back, which he terminates by observing, that "Lodovico made a little alteration, putting two of the figures in a sitting posture, as appears by the print, which is otherwise beyond imagination inferior to the drawing Third Day. in the grace of the actions and countenances, and above all the inexpressible delicacy, which is the predominant virtue of this little star. 'E a cui così non pare, dovrebbe del suo giudizio dolersi,' as Count Malvasia says on another occasion."

This Drawing has since been in the Collection of Mr. C. Jennings.

Brooke

113 - 365 One, another design for the same subject. Free pen.

7 h. 5 w.

290

The Painting was executed by Agostino with considerable alterations ; but these first ideas of the artist are extremely interesting, as the picture forms an epoca in the art, and was closely imitated by Domenichino in his grand picture on the same subject.

118 - 366 The Holy Family with Angels ; broad pen. REVERSE, the Virgin and Child in the heavens. In grisaille, very fine.

PICTURES.

FIFTH DAY's SALE.

SERIES OF PICTURES ILLUSTRATING THE RISE
AND PROGRESS OF PAINTING IN ITALY.

GREEK SCHOOL.

60-1 THE HEAD OF THE VIRGIN, seen in front; from Fifth Day.
the picture in the church of S. Maria Maggiore, at Firenze Rome, said to have been painted by St. Luke the evangelist. Round the interior of the frame is inscribed,

VERA. EFFIGIES B. MARIÆ
VIRGINIS AD IMITATIONEM
S. LVCE QUAE ROMÆ HABETVR
IN S. M. MAJORE.

2 f. h. 2 f. 11 in. w.

The opinion that St. Luke was a painter may be traced to a very early period of the Christian church. The question has been fully discussed by Tiraboschi, Lanzi, and other Italian critics, and by Mr. Ottley in the introduction to his Italian School of Design; but seems to be of little importance except as it tends to shew that the professors of Christianity began very early to regard picturesque representations with a favourable eye. The picture at Rome, of which the present is a very ancient copy, is undoubtedly one of the earliest specimens of a picture by a Christian artist; or of what may be called, with reference to the works of the ancients, modern art.

Fifth Day.

2 THE CORONATION OF THE VIRGIN. The figures are seen at half length; the Virgin, with her hands folded on her breast, devoutly inclines her head before Christ, who places on the crown with both hands. This picture corresponds with the description given by Baldinucci of the works of the Greek painters immediately prior to the revival of the art in Italy.

10 10 7

Chrysophoros

3 THE ANNUNCIATION. The angel Gabriel appearing to the Virgin in her chamber, with Greek inscriptions. Above is another inscription in ancient Russian characters, from which it has been conjectured by a very competent judge, and native of that country, to have been executed in the fifteenth century. The whole is very highly finished.

7 in. h. 6 in. w.

 BUE, F. Painted in distemper, on pannel. Examination

1 f. 2 in. h. 1 f. 1 in. w.

In an ancient reeded oak frame. This picture is certainly to be referred to a very early period of the art.

GIOTTO DI BONDONE.

- 4/466 A Group of three Holy Women with an infant; part Examination of a painting representing the nativity of St. John;
 a Fresco, cut from the walls of the church of the Carmelites, in Florence, before that place was destroyed by fire, in 1771.

1 f. 8 in. h. 1 f. 9 in. w.

A print of the whole picture is published by Patch, by whom this portion was cut from the wall and sent into England.
v. Catalogue of Prints, No. 1331.

- 5/467 The Daughter of Herod receiving the head of St. John;
 a Fresco, from another painting of the history of that saint in the church of the Carmelites.

1 f. 3 in. h. 1 f. 1 in. w.

The entire picture has also been engraved by Patch, who has likewise given a separate print of this very elegant figure.

Fifth Day.

SIMONE MEMMI,
Called SIMONE DA SIENNA.

Leaf 8 The Holy Family. Joseph and the Virgin remonstrating with Christ on his return from the temple.

"His mother said unto him, Son, why hast thou thus dealt with us? Behold thy father and I have sought thee sorrowing.

"And he said unto them, how is it that ye sought me? Know ye not that I must be about my Father's business? Luke ii. 48.

On the bottom of the picture and on the same pannel is inscribed,

SIMON DE SENIS ME PINXIT SVB A. D. MCCCXLII.

On an ornamented gold ground.

1 f. $7\frac{1}{2}$ in. h. 1 f. 2 in. w.

Leaf 9 Two, a pair, Angels playing on musical Instruments.

11 in. h. 12 in. w.

Although not so highly finished as the preceding picture, these pieces are evidently by the same hand. The attitudes are well contrasted, and the character of devotion finely expressed.

DON SILVESTRO CAMALDOLESE.

Leaf 10 The Nativity of St. John, an illuminated painting, in water colours; on vellum, framed and glazed.

1 f. h. 11 in. w.

A leaf from the celebrated mass-book formerly in the monastery of Camaldoli, near Florence, representing the letter D. finished as highly as a miniature, and in the most perfect preservation.

Of this work Vasari gives the following very particular and interesting account:

"Don Jacopo Fiorentino (a monk of Camaldoli) was the best writer of large letters who was then or has since been known, not only in Tuscany but throughout Europe, as appears as well by the twenty very large pieces in the books of the choir, which he left in his own monastery, and Fifth Day. which are the finest and largest perhaps in Italy, as from many others at Rome, Venice, and other places, but chiefly at San Michele, and San Mattio di Murano, a monastery of the Camaldolese; on account of which works this good father was not only celebrated after his death by D. Paulo Orlandini, a learned monk of the same monastery, in Latin verse, but his right hand was preserved with great veneration in a casket, together with that of another monk called D. Silvestro, who was not less excellent, considering the time in which he lived, in painting, than D. Jacopo was in writing; and I, who have frequently seen their works, have been astonished to find them so well designed and diligently finished at a time when the art was little less than lost; these works being executed in the year 1350, or thereabouts, as is noted in each of the books. It is said, and there are some persons who yet remember it, that when Leo X. came to Florence, he wished to see the before-mentioned books, recollecting to have heard them highly praised by his father the magnificent Lorenzo de' Medici; and that when he had attentively admired them, he said, that if the service had been arranged according to the order of the church at Rome, instead of that of Camaldoli, he would have had some pieces of them (giving a sufficient recompence to the monks) for the church of St. Peter's; where there were already, and perhaps yet are, two others by the aforesaid monks, which are very beautiful." Vas. vol. i. p. 162.

The above pieces were brought into this kingdom by Mr. Ottley, who purchased them in Italy during the revolutionary troubles there.

FRA. GIOVANNI DA FIESOLE,
Called IL BEATO ANGELICO.

11 The Nativity of the Virgin, painted on pannel.

6 in. h. 14 in. w.

Fra. Giovanni was originally a miniature painter, or illuminator of Missals; but he afterwards enlarged his style, and is considered as the best disciple of the school of Giotto.

Fifth Day.

TOMASO GUIDI DA S. GIOVANNI,
Called MASACCIO.

5/5 - 12 His own Portrait; on pannel.

11 in. h. 8 in. w. Portrait

Although with a more cheerful expression, this portrait agrees in feature with that engraved by Patch from the works of Masaccio, at Florence. v. Catalogue of Prints, No. 1331.

FRANCESCO PESELLI.

5/10 - 13 The Exhibition of a Relic in the Cathedral at Florence, containing portraits of Cosmo de' Medici, P. P. his son Piero il Gottoso, his grandsons Lorenzo and Giuliano, and upwards of seventy figures in the costume of the time. Portrait

2 f. 6 in. h. 1 f. w.

Lanzi says, "the two Peselli enjoyed the perpetual patronage of the Medici; which they repaid to the best of their power, by continually presenting before the public in their pictures (which according to the custom of the times were filled with portraits) the likenesses of their patrons."

ANDREA DAL CASTAGNO.

Portrait 14 The Martyrdom of St. Sebastian.

15 The temptation of St. Antonio, a pair, painted on pannel.

10 in. h. 1 f. 8 in. w.

FILIPPO LIPPI.

Head 16 Head of a Lady, richly ornamented.

1 f. h. 10 in. w.

A pannel cut from the wainscot of the Palazzo Riccardi, formerly the palace of the Medici at Florence, where this piece was probably painted by the artist.

- Rest.* 17 The Virgin and Child, with St. John and Angels, on Fifth Day.
a gold ground; pannel.

2 f. h. 1 f. 7 in. w.

A fine and perfect specimen of the style of this eminent master, as described by Lanzi.

ANTONIO POLLAJUOLO.

- 146* 18 Dead Christ on the knees of the Virgin, who is seated on the Tomb; in the back ground the Crucifixion, with many figures. On pannel.

1 f. 2 in. h. 1 f. w.

From the Riccardi Collection.

ALESSIO BALDOVINETTI.

- 33* 19 The Nativity; the Virgin kneeling, and adoring the Child; St. Joseph standing over him with a lantern. On pannel.

11 in. h. 9 in. w.

LORENZO DI CREDI.

- 27/6* 20 The Holy Family; the Virgin sitting under a rich canopy; St. Joseph gathering dates. On pannel.

2 f. 8 in. h. 1 f. 11 in. w.

The pictures of Lorenzo di Credi exhibit a middle style between those of Pietro Perugino and Lionardo da Vinci, who were all three scholars of Andrea Verocchio. The works of Lorenzo are so highly finished that Vasari says, "all other pictures seem, in comparison with them, to be only sketches."

PIETRO PERUGINO.

- Rest.* 21 The Madonna and Child: she is seated before a green curtain which forms the back ground of the picture; on pannel.

1 f. 5 in. h. 1 f. 2 in. w.

- Fifth Day. 15.5- 22 Saint Jerome. He is adoring a crucifix in a cavern, through the entrance of which appears a landscape highly finished, on pannel.

1 f. 1 in. h. 1 f. 4 in. w. Belin

This is one of the most perfect productions remaining of the master of Raffaello, who appears from this specimen to have given his last touches with gold.

ANDREA MANTEGNA.

- 77- 23 The Burial of Christ, with the inscription on the tomb, HVMANI GENERIS REDEMPTORI. On pannel.

1 f. 2 in. h. 1 f. 5 in. w. Belin

Mantegna has engraved this subject with some variations, and with the same inscription. v. Catalogue of Prints, No. 240.

JACOPO BELLINI.

- 5,55 { 24 Portrait of Dante Alighieri.
25 Portrait of Madonna Beatrice. A pair; on pannel.

1 f. h. 10 in. w. Belin

From the Collection of John Strange, Esq. late British Consul at Venice.

- 5,56 26 St. Jerome in contemplation in the Desert; on pannel.

2 f. 3 in. h. 2 f. 6 in. w. Belin

GENTILE BELLINI.

- 5,57- 27 The Holy Family.

2 f. 8 in. h. 1 f. 9 in. w. Belin

An undoubted picture of this rare master, and highly finished.

GIOVANNI BELLINI.

- 21- 28 Madonna and Child, with St. Zaccharias and St. Francis. On pannel.

1 f. 5 in. h. 2 f. 1 in. w. Belin

Finished in the highest style of the master, and in perfect preservation.

RIDOLFO GHIRLANDAJO.

Fifth Day.

55-29 Madonna and Child ; on pannel. M. G.

1 f. 2 in. h. 1 f. w.

This picture, painted in the manner of Raffaele, has been considered and sold as one of his productions.

LIONARDI DA VINCI.

64-30 Head of an Angel. Fine effect; on a thick pannel. L. V.

1 f. 6 in. h. 1 f. 2 in. w.

77-31 Portrait of Mona Lisa, called the Gioconda ; on canvas. M. G.

2 f. 2 in. h. 1 f. 7 in. w.

An early copy of the celebrated picture of Lionardo, which he is said to have been four years in finishing.

MICHELAGNOLO BUONAROTTI.

52-32 Christ and the Woman of Samaria ; on pannel. M. G.

2 f. 6 in. h. 1 f. 11 in. w.

This piece, executed on pannel in chiaro scuro, and undoubtedly by the hand of Michelagnolo, was designed for Alfonso Davalos Marchese del Guasto, for the purpose of being copied on a larger scale in oil colours by Jacopo Pontormo. Vasari denominates it, Christ appearing to the Magdalen in the Garden ; but Fuseli in his ed. of the Painters' Dictionary has corrected the error, and calls it Christ and the Samaritan Woman. Of this design there are two early engravings, one by Beatrizet, and the other by an artist whose initials are A.L. V.

From the Collection of the King of Naples, at Capo di Monte, and brought into this kingdom by Mr. Ottley.

GIORGIONE.

88-33 CHILDREN PLAYING WITH A LAMB. M. G.

2 f. 2 in. h. 3 f. 1 in. w.

An early picture of this great colourist, in which may be traced the rudiments of his future excellence.

- Fifth Day. 22 1- 34 PORTRAIT OF A MAN in a large hat, with a guittar. 2 f. 11 in. h. 1 f. 5 in. w. Baxter
 A fine and undoubted specimen in his best style, and in the highest preservation.

GAUDENZIO FERRARI.

- 10 10- 35 THE TRANSFIGURATION, arched at top. 3 f. 3 in. h. 2 f. 4 in. w. Robinson
 A finished and coloured sketch for a large picture. 'This master, although little known beyond the limits of Italy, is ranked by Lomazzo with Raffaëlle, Correggio, &c. as one of the seven great painters of the age. Mythology was the sphere of Julio, Religion that of Gaudenzio; Fuseli in MS. Lanzi calls him Pittor grandissimo, and adds, Raffaello è sempre, e vicinissimo a primari della Scuola Romana.

ANTONIO CORREGIO.

- 13 2 36 The Madonna and Child. 1 f. 5 in. h. 1 f. 4 in. w. Baxter
 Presumed to be one of his earliest Cabinet Pictures, which Lanzi informs us are yet occasionally met with, and which from their dissimilarity to his subsequent style, are either doubted, or ascribed to some of his scholars.
 27 27- 37 Cupid expressing his contempt of the sciences and arts. 3 f. 2 in. h. 2 f. 4 in. w. Robinson

FRANCESCO PARMIGIANO.

- 17 86 38 A female figure, whole length, walking. 1 f. 3 in. h. 8 in. w. Robinson
 A fresco painting on plaster, cut from a cicling.

TITIANO VECELLI.

- 11 11- 39 The court of Heaven, with the Coronation of the Virgin. 2 f. 7 in. h. 2 f. w. Bullantyn
 A superb and tinted sketch for one of his large pictures; the figures designed with the greatest spirit, and the composition and effect of the whole being such as to reflect the highest honour on the genius of the master.

40 The Rape of Proserpine.

Fifth Day.

1 f. 11 in. h. 2 f. 3 in. w. Miller

JACOPO TINTORETTO.

55-41 His own portrait, a bust; size of life. *Miller*1010-42 The slaughter of the Innocents. Robinson

1 f. 8 in. h. 2 f. 3 in. w.

Distinguished by that rapidity of style which characterizes all the works of this artist.

BONIFAZIO VENEZIANO.

4776-43 The history of Moses. Baron

10 in. h. 2 f. 5 in. w.

The action is double. The infant is committed to the river in one part of the picture, and found by the daughter of Pharaoh in the other:—a mode of representation which Ridolfi informs us was usual with this painter, who was the scholar of Titiano, and who emulated his master so closely, that it was usual at Venice to ask, è ella di Tiziano o di Bonifazio?

913-44 An historical subject; a person of quality, under the guard of three soldiers, addressing himself to two women of rank, who appear much interested—a prison to the left of the picture—Venetian dresses; finely coloured. Baron

CAPITAL PICTURES BY ITALIAN MASTERS.

VINCENZO CATENA.

115-63 MADONNA AND CHILD WITH SAINTS. The Virgin is seated with the child on her knee; behind her a young woman, designed in the manner of Raffaele; before her St. Francis, and another saint richly habited in an episcopal dress, with a crozier. Below is the Portrait of a man in adoration; probably either the painter himself, or the person for whom the picture was painted. To this person Christ is giving his blessing. At the bottom of the picture, to the left, is inscribed in capital letters,

VINCENCIVS CHATENA P.

On pannel, in the most perfect preservation.

2 f. 8 in. h. 3 f. 7 in. w.

"Hobbe Il Catena un Genio nobile nella Pittura. Egli visse ne' tempi di Giorgione, e emulò con ogni potere la di lui gloria; ma non lo superò già nella maestria, benchè egli usasse ogni diligenza e buon colorito nelle sue pitture. Ridolfi, 1. 64."

Lanzi places Catena in the first epoca of the Venetian School, on account of his paintings in the churches of Venice; "bella veramente, ma non moderna a bastanza;" but he particularly notices a holy family painted by him, in the Pesaro gallery, in the style of Giorgione; which, if he had painted nothing else, would have intitled him to be ranked in the succeeding epoca. "Se altra cosa non avesse dipinta, saria da rimoversi da quest' epoca."

of art, as exhibiting, in one point of view, the transition from the crude but laborious manner of the early masters, to the grand and simple style introduced under the auspices of Michelagnolo.

After having studied some time from the antique, in the gardens of the Medici, this great artist was placed, whilst still very young, under the directions of Ghirlandajo, who was then considered as the first painter of the age. Here he gave such early proofs of his talents, that Ghirlandajo not only acknowledged his superiority, but even availed himself of his assistance in his own pictures, as is expressly mentioned by the editors of the Etruria Pittrice, "Tuttavia mentre Giovanetto e Scolare, ritoccava spesso, e migliorava le esemplari del suo maestro."

That Ghirlandajo was accustomed to introduce friezes at the bottom of his pictures, is mentioned by Vasari. The present appears to have been intrusted to Michelagnolo, who has divided it into two compartments, representing the Jewish and Christian dispensation, or the old and new law. In the former, Moses attended by Aaron appears with the tables of the commandments, which he breaks on seeing the Israelites adore the golden calf. In the second, the idols of the heathen fall down before the coming of Christ, who appears in the arms of the Virgin pointing towards them. On the right is the crowned prophet predicting, and on the left a sibyl lamenting his advent. This piece is executed in chiaro-scuro, with bistre heightened with white, and is highly finished in stippling, or rather oblong dots, in the same manner as his design of Christ and the Samaritan Woman, v. ante, No. 32; demonstrating how early he adopted the mode of execution, which he ever afterwards retained.

As this very early piece of Michelagnolo exhibits the same grand and unaffected style that distinguishes his subsequent works, it may be thought extraordinary that it should be the production of so early an age; but it may truly be said of him, that his professional life had no infancy, and that his earlier and later works are nearer an equality than those of any other master on record. On his being first placed with Ghirlandajo he corrected a drawing of his master, which on being shewn to him many years afterwards led him to observe, that he seemed to himself to have known more of the art when he was a child, than he knew now when he was grown old. Fifth Day.

This picture is in the finest preservation possible.

ANDREA DEL SARTO.

525 - 76 Portrait of Leo X. with his cousin the Cardinal Giulio de' Medici, and his nephew the Cardinal de' Rossi. On pannel.

5 f. h. 3 f. 10 in. w.

Vasari relates, that when Federigo Duke of Mantua passed through Florence to pay his respects to Clement VII. he saw, in the Palace of the Medici, the Portrait of Leo X. with the Cardinals Giulio de' Medici and Rossi, with which he was so highly pleased, that on his arrival at Rome he requested it as a gift from the Pope, (who was then at the head of the Medici family, and one of the persons represented in the picture); the Pontiff generously complied with his wishes, and directions were accordingly sent to Ottaviano de' Medici at Florence, to forward the picture to Mantua; but he being unwilling that the family should be deprived of such a treasure, sent to Andrea del Sarto and requested him to copy it, which he did with such success, that Ottaviano himself could not distinguish the copy from the original; concealing therefore the picture of Raffaele, he sent to Mantua that of Andrea del Sarto, with which the Duke was perfectly satisfied, and even Ginlio Romano, the favorite pupil of Raffaele, who was then resident at Mantua, was not aware of the deception.

In this error they might have remained, had not a singular incident led to an explanation. Vasari, then a young and rising artist, desirous of forming an acquaintance with Giulio Romano, paid a visit to Mantua, where he was received with great civility by Ginlio, who after gratifying him with the sight of the works of art which the city afforded, at length exhibited to him the picture of Raffaele, as the greatest ornament of the place. "A beautiful work," cried Vasari, "but not by the hand of Raffaele." "How so?" said Ginlio, "is it possible I should not recognize the touches of my own pencil upon it?" "You are mistaken," replied Vasari, "this picture is the work of Andrea del Sarto, (under whom Vasari had studied at the time the copy was made) and as a proof of it, there is a mark which I will shew you." The picture was accordingly taken down, and the mark mentioned by Vasari discovered, upon which Giulio declared "that he valued the copy no less than the picture of Raffaele himself; nay," added he, "even more, because it is incredible that one painter should so perfectly imitate the manner of another."

In consequence of this artifice, the picture of Raffaele remained at Florence, till it was carried away a few years since to ornament the immense collection of the Louvre; that of Andrea del Sarto afterwards came into the possession of the Duke of Parma, from which city it was transferred to Naples, and formed a part of the Royal Collection at Capo di Monte; where it remained till that collection was dispersed by the revolutionary troubles, and is presumed to have found its way (in common with many other pictures from the same collection) into this country, where it became the property of a respectable dealer in London, who never would part with it in his life time; but after whose death it was purchased by its present possessor.

During the time these pictures were in Italy, they were the Fifth Day. frequent subjects of comparison and criticism. Richard-son, in his account of the Works of Art in Italy, (vol. iii. p. 665) says, there are those who pretend that the copy is preferable to the original, but that to judge properly, it would be requisite to see them together. He prefers the original, but at the same time he doubts whether he may not be prejudiced in favour of Ruffuelle. The prelate Bottari, the learned editor and annotator of Vasari's Lives of the Painters, relates, that by particular favour he obtained a sight of the picture at Naples, (about the year 1756) and returned twice to examine it, but could not obtain permission to take it out of the frame. "I can however say," adds he, "that this is one of the most stupendous pictures I have ever seen, and appears not to have been painted more than six months. I have fresh in my memory the original of Raffaele, which I saw not many years since, and I aver that setting aside the names of the painters, and the knowledge of the facts, many good judges would take the copy in preference to the original, which is now turned rather black, whilst the copy, besides its freshness, is more soft and fleshy than the original." In his notes on the Lettere Pittoriche (of which he was also the editor) Bottari repeats his observations on these two pictures; "L'originale di questo quadro (di Raffaele) è nel Palazzo de' Pitti; e la copia d' Andrea è presso S. M. Rè di Napoli; e sto per dire che ora è più bella dell' originale." Vol. ii. p. 400. From the accounts of those who have seen the picture of Raffaele in the Louvre, its condition has not been improved since its arrival in France; and M. Landon, who has given an outline of it in the Annales du Musé, admits qu'elle a pâti, whilst the present picture still retains the freshness ascribed to it by Bottari, and appears not to have been painted more than six months.

What was the mark by which Andrea distinguished his copy from the original, Vasari has not mentioned; but the prelate Bottari informs us that he had heard Gabbiani, who was himself an eminent painter, and who was born soon after the middle of the seventeenth century, and had associated with many old professors, say, "that the mark set upon the picture by Andrea, was the writing his name on the edge or thickness of the pannel, which was covered by the frame; and that when Vasari had the picture taken out of the frame, Giulio read the inscription."

Notwithstanding these facts, the picture had been a considerable time in the possession of its present owner before he examined whether any traces of such an inscription could be discovered. Having, however, been assured several times, as well by artists as others who had seen it at Capo di Monte, that this was the identical picture, and several peculiarities being pointed out which appeared too striking to be mistaken, he had, about two years since, the picture taken out of the frame, in the presence of some of his friends, when on the left edge of the pannel, which is about three quarters of an inch thick, the remains of the inscription were still visible. This inscription was much obliterated, but according to the best judgment that could be formed of it, had been composed of the letters

ANDREA. F. P. - - - .

Probably followed by the date of the year, which was however quite illegible.

The coincidence of this fact, with the relation of Vasari, and the tradition of Gabbiani, was considered by the parties present as a sufficient evidence of this being the identical picture of Andrea del Sarto.

It may be proper to add, that from the enquiries that have been made, it does not appear that the picture of Andrea is now either at Naples or Palermo, to which latter place a great part of the collection at Capo di Monte had been removed, before the French obtained possession of Naples.

JOHN VAN EYCK,

The inventor of Painting in Oil.

4 - - 78 The Burial of Christ. On pannel.

Sixth Day.

1 foot 9 inches square.

From the Truchsess Collection, where it was attributed to Israel van Mecheln, whose manner, as is apparent from his engravings, is wholly different.

In the Imperial gallery at Vienna is a picture by John van Eyck on the same subject, the description of which, in M. de Mechel's Catalogue, precisely agrees with the present, and shews that they are both from the same artist.

"The dead body of Christ on a white sheet, at the foot of Mount Calvary, surrounded by the Virgin and seven holy persons; some of whom are weeping, whilst others make preparations for the sepulture of the Saviour. The Cross is perceived on the summit of the Mount." Mechel, Cat. de la Gallerie Imperiale de Vienne, 152.

There is a difference in the size, the present picture being larger than that at Vienna, which is only about 13 in. by 8, French measure.

very singular and early specimen is painted in distemper, on a calcareous ground, but has perfectly preserved its colouring.

ROGER VANDER WEYDE,

Called ROGER of BRUGES.

N. 4 80 The adoration of the Magi. On pannel, in distemper.

11 in. h. 8 in. w. 15th Century

From the high finish, richness of colouring, and perfect preservation of this picture, it would appear that the invention of painting in oil was preceded by a mode of execution which had been carried to a high degree of perfection, and even admitted of a touch and effect not to be attained in oil. Accordingly many of the early masters, as well in Italy as in Germany and Flanders, still continued to paint with the preparation of eggs, and other substances; and their pictures, with the aid of varnishes, seem to be as durable as those painted in oil; so that the entire loss of this method cannot be regarded wholly without regret.

Vander Weyde was the scholar of Van Eyck, who it is said concealed his discovery from his pupil till he was on his death bed. However that may be, the works of Vander Weyde are chiefly, if not entirely painted in distemper.

Descamps has described Roger Vander Weyde and Roger of Bruges as two different artists; and M. de Mechel, in his Catalogue of the Vienna Gallery, has fallen into a similar error, and attributed a separate picture to each. One of these is on the same subject as the above, and the artist appears to have treated it precisely in the same manner.

HANS HEMMELINCK.

N. 11 81 Christ taken down from the Cross; an Altar piece composed of a centre and two Volets, or wings. Size of the centre 2 feet square, covered by the volets; which, when opened, form a piece 4 feet long and 2 feet high.

The centre piece represents the descent from the cross, and on each of the volets is the crucifixion of one of the thieves. One of them also contains portraits of a woman standing and a man kneeling, and devoutly regarding the Sixth Day. principal scene; these are probably the donors of the picture. On the other volet are two figures, the elder of whom resembles the Emperor Maximilian, who places his hand on the shoulder of a younger man, clad in mail, and richly habited, intended perhaps for his son Philip of Austria, King of Castile, the father of Charles V. These figures are undoubtedly introduced as the patrons of the piece. At the foot of one of the volets is a lion rampant, half length, probably the emblem used by the painter. On the reverse of the volets are two figures of Saints, painted in oil by a later artist, in the manner of Lucas van Leyden.

This picture is most clearly and forcibly painted in distemper, although certainly after the use of oil was generally known. There is considerable merit both in the design and composition, and the numerous spectators and assistants exhibit strong and diversified characters.

"Hemmelinck," says Descamps, "had a better style of design than the other painters of his time. He grouped his figures with more order. His subjects are better disposed. His architecture is well chosen. His perspective is good. He was at least equal to the brothers Van Eyck, and in some respects surpassed them. It is astonishing that his pictures are painted only with the white of eggs. Undoubtedly he preferred this manner of painting and disregarded the use of oil, of the invention of which he could not be ignorant. In fact, nothing can be more beautiful or more fresh than the pictures that remain of him."

Amongst the drawings in this Collection is the design for the group of the Virgin and St. John in this picture, which was executed with considerable alterations. The drawing formerly belonged to Mr. Ottley, by whom it was attributed to this master. v. Drawings, No. 437.

MICHAEL WOLGEMUTH.

Sixth Day.

21. 88 The Crucifixion; a large Altar-piece, with double Volets; forming, when opened, a piece 2 feet 8 inches high, and 10 feet wide. Bux. Icon.

The centre represents Christ on the cross, with many figures: the two nearer volets exhibit Christ bearing his cross, and the ascension of Christ; and the two exterior ones, Pilate washing his hands, &c.

The latter are painted in chiaro-scuro, and when closed form the exterior of the picture, which is then 2 feet 8 inches high, by 3 feet 9 inches wide.

Michael Wolgemuth and Martin Schoen are the founders of the German School. Their manner is much more hard, tasteless and gothic than that of their predecessors in the low countries, to whom indeed they are inferior in every point of view. Their barbarism imposed shackles even upon the genius of Albert Dürer, which if left to itself might have diffused throughout Germany a better style of design.

In the Imperial Collection at Vienna is a picture of Wolgemuth, painted in the same manner as the present, with four volets: some of the subjects are also similar, as Pilate washing his hands, &c. The Vienna picture is marked ANNO DOMINI 1511. v. Mezel, Catalogue de la Gal. Imper. de Vienne, p. 244.

The subjects of this painter, whether sacred or profane, are always treated in the most grotesque manner. The mask is that of an old hag with horns, from one of which an imp is distributing papal bulls. This picture, painted before the time of Luther, indicates how fully some parts of Europe were prepared for the change that soon afterwards took place. This artist gave to his works a brilliancy of colouring which seems not to have suffered to the present day.

FRANCIS FRANCK Jun.

Called YOUNG FRANCKS.

21. 105 Christ, surrounded by the instruments of his passion, manifesting himself in the celebration of the mass to the Pope and numerous attendants, who express their astonishment at the miracle—an Altar-piece, with two volets, on one of which is represented the crowning with thorns, and on the other the scourging of Christ.

W. Haller

On the reverse of the volets are the figures of St. Francis and St. John in chiaro-scuro, which form the outside of the picture when closed.

1 f. 8 in. h. 2 f. 6 in. w.

The style of design in this picture approaches to that of the School of Italy, in which country this artist long resided.

3 f. 1 in. h. 2 f. 6 in. w.

This very beautiful and extraordinary picture is mentioned by Karl van Mander and Descamps, in the life of Lucas van Leyden, as having been painted by him when very young, to the astonishment of all the artists of the time. It came from the Collection of the Greffier Fagel, and is in the finest possible state of preservation.

REMBRANDT.

157 150 The Magdalen; called the lady and death.

4 f. 2 in. h. 3 f. 4 in. w.

P. P. RUBENS.

154 151 St. Cecilia.

4 f. 2 in. h. 3 f. 11 in. w.

A genuine and brilliant picture of great effect.

GERARD TERBURGH.

152 A Lady practising music with her master.

2 f. 4 in. h. 1 f. 10 in. w.

In truth of drawing and sedate harmony of colouring, this may be considered as one of the finest specimens of the Flemish School.

NICHOLAS POUSSIN.

153 The elevation of the brazen serpent.

4 f. h. 4 f. 11 in. w.

A truly grand and genuine picture of this master. The history of Moses has afforded to Poussin subjects for many of his finest compositions. In this he has displayed a dignity of conception and spirit of execution not surpassed by any of his most admired productions.

HENRY FUSELI.

154 Oedipus devotes to the infernal Gods his son Polynices, who, by the directions of the Oracle, endeavoured to obtain his favour against his brother Eteocles, after they had expelled their father from his dominions.

From the same.

5 f. h. 5 f. 6 in. w.

A fine mezzotinto print has been engraved and published from this picture.

Rich. 22 1/2 in 156 Britomart freeing Amoret from the enchantment of Busirane.

“ Soon as that Virgin-knight he saw in place,
His wicked books in haste he overthrew,
Not caring his long labours to deface ;
And fiercely running to that Lady true,
A murderous knife out of his pocket drew,
The which he thought in villainous despite
In her tormented body to imbrue ;
But the stont damsel to him leaping light,
His cursed hand with-held, and maistered his might.”
